

DEFERRED RECRUITMENT FAQ

What is deferred recruitment?

Deferred recruitment is a policy that requires first year students to wait one academic semester before pursuing membership in a Sorority or Fraternity. This means that all incoming students, including spring admit first years, must wait at least one semester before beginning a recruitment process. Similarly, this means chapters cannot actively recruit first years until the spring semester. The purpose of deferred recruitment is to allow first-year students to acclimate within their first semester on Furman's campus. Joining a Greek organization is a lifelong commitment. Deferred recruitment emphasizes the importance of this commitment by giving first years a chance to meet every Greek organization before deciding.

How can I meet first years?

Please get to know first years through traditional avenues such as previous relationships, other involvements than your chapter, common interests and classes, as well as IFC and Panhellenic recruitment events. We encourage you to meet them through these traditional avenues and build relationships in that way. The goal is to allow first years to have space to learn about being a student here at Furman and to not worry about recruitment.

What events can first years go to?

Any open registered event without alcohol that is not targeted specifically for recruitment. This may include philanthropy events or tabling. They may also go to any event hosted by IFC or Panhellenic such as Panhellenic Nights, Greek Groove, IFC Chili Cookoff etc.

Outside of chapter activities, what activities can I do with first years?

Individual chapter members can meet and interact with first years as long as you are not actively recruiting them or have the intention of getting to know them for recruitment.

What can I tell first years about my Greek experience?

First years may reach out to you and ask questions about your experience. If you are asked about your experience, please tell them. You are allowed to talk about your experience in your chapter and you should encourage them to explore other chapters. The goals should be to get them to "Go Greek." not go your specific chapter. We should allow each person to decide their best fit through the formal recruitment process.

Do transfer students fall under deferred recruitment?

If a student has 12-credit hours through another college or university, they would be eligible to participate in formal recruitment.

Do National Pan-Hellenic Council (NPHC) organizations abide by deferred recruitment?

Yes, as a Greek organization, they must abide by the rules of deferred recruitment. However, these organizations do not participate in a larger council-led recruitment process. NPHC members join through a more individualized process known as membership intake, which is determined by each chapter.
