

FURMAN UNIVERSITY BEE AND POLLINATOR CLUB CONSTITUTION

Article 1: Name

The name of this organization will be the Furman University Bee and Pollinator Club, or simply the Furman University Bee Club (FUBC)

Article 2: Purpose

The purpose of this organization shall be to support the upkeep of Furman's on campus Honey-Bee hive(s) through training members to inspect the health and wellbeing of the hive. The club will employ members to participate in community outreach programs to share the necessity of pollinators as well as introduce programs to Furman's campus to make the grounds more bee and pollinator friendly. This club will also harvest honey from its hives each season, alongside efforts to expand the operation with newer equipment, more hives, etc.

Article 3: Affiliations

This organization will be supported by the department of Sustainability and the David E. Shi Center for Sustainability here at Furman University.

Article 4: Membership

Membership into this organization will be open to any and all who desire to aid in the current pollinator decline, want to learn more about sustainability in relation to pollinators, and just want to support positive environmental changes. Membership will not be limited solely to those nonallergic to bees as direct contact with the animals will be optional. In keeping with Furman University's non-discrimination policies, membership shall be open to all undergraduate, day students. Our organization will not discriminate on the basis of race, sex, handicap, age, sexual orientation, political affiliation, or religious affiliation.

Article 5: Officers

This organization's executive team will consist of the President, Treasurer, Hive Coordinator, Honey Sales Coordinator, and Communications, and two advising members. This committee will be supported by the faculty sponsor and will meet as an executive board with or without said sponsor outside of normal meeting times.

- a) The president will supervise over any and all club meetings and events. The president will have any secretarial responsibilities necessary for operation of the club. The treasurer will have to manage and record the club's finances, make financial statements, and allocate funds. The Hive Coordinator will be required to attend all outdoor events to ensure projects are completed safely and competently including the management of bee suits. They will communicate with David Manning about when to host hive inspections. The Honey Sales Coordinator will manage sales of honey to individuals, the dining hall and other customers. The Communications member will help set up outreach tables/programs, as well as create materials to spread the word regarding our club and its goals. The advising members will have voting positions on the executive team and fill cracks as needed.

- b) Officers will be voted in towards the end of the fall semester by a majority vote of the executive team.
- c) There is no limit on the number of times an individual can run for a position. However, there is a two-term limit on any one position. Executive team members should be committed to the longevity of the club, even after their graduation.
- d) If an officer is unable to fulfill their responsibilities, the club members or executive team may call for an impeachment vote. The officer shall be removed if more than 80% of the club votes in favor for said impeachment or 80% of the executive team.

Article 6: Advisor

While the advisor(s) is welcomed and invited to attend any and all meetings and events, it is requested they express their interests to the executive board. All executives will have a meeting with the advisor throughout the semester to discuss operation of the club.

Article 7: Meetings

Club meetings will be held on dates and times most suitable for the members. Hive inspections should happen weekly or biweekly in the early fall semester and late spring, and can transition to general club meetings in the winter.

Article 8: Finances

The club will receive funding from SGA funding and honey sales (alongside any other fundraising activities), collected by the treasurer, coordinated and managed by the treasurer.

Article 9: Amendments

Should any amendments need to be made to this document, any member of the executive team can present their desired changes to the executive team for approval. Approval is determined by a simple majority.

BILAWS

Article 1: Membership

Membership is open to every Furman University student regardless of personal background. The sole requirement for full membership is participation and interest. Removal of a member will take place after inappropriate actions, such as violent threats and actions, disrespect of a fellow member, and other action, but not limited to, those not condoned by Furman University. The member in question will be placed within a hearing with the executive team to determine the length of removal.

Article 2: Selection of Officers

Officers will be selected at the end of every fall term with an election/appointment process, the member receiving the most votes from the executive team will receive the title. The removal of an officer uses the same guidelines for the removal of a full member.

Responsibilities:

The president will supervise over any and all club meetings and events. The president will have any secretarial responsibilities necessary for operation of the club. The treasurer will have to manage and record the club's finances, make financial statements, and allocate funds. The Hive Coordinator will be required to attend all outdoor events to ensure projects are completed safely and competently including the management of bee suits. They will communicate with David Manning about when to host hive inspections. The Honey Sales Coordinator will manage sales of honey to individuals, the dining hall and other customers. The Communications member will help set up outreach tables/programs, as well as create materials to spread the word regarding our club and its goals. The advising members will have voting positions on the executive team and fill cracks as needed.

Article 3: Selection of Advisor

The advisor of the Furman Bee Club will be selected from faculty within the EES, SUS, or BIO departments, or the Shi Center for Sustainability. The sponsor will be chosen based on their knowledge and interest in environmental issues regarding honeybees and other pollinators.

Article 4: Rules of Order

Business will first be conducted during executive team meetings and then addressed and discussed during the full member meetings. Internal conflicts will be resolved within the executive board and further handled by the advisor if necessary.

Article 5:

Should any amendments need to be made to this document, any member of the executive team can present their desired changes to the remaining executive team members for approval, voted on by a simple majority.